

Speaking out, speaking up

Because one person sent in a comment suggesting I should keep my political views to myself...I have been thinking about that...and have decided that the issues are too vital, too important, to stay silent. I'm not the only children's author who feels that way. Check out Judy Blume's blog, for example, at <http://judyblumbelog.blogspot.com/> or the list of over 1000 authors for children supporting Obamap at <http://www.aiforc.org/obama/telist.html> I was going to copy the entire list here but it is simply too long. It consists of people who care deeply about children and what the future of this country holds for them. Many of them are names you know well.
